I ♥ MY LITTLE SISTER

Yes it is possible to turn a situation from a friend to a LUVER, if you know what to do but even d.i.n., it won't work every time.

I ♥ MY

sister in law

Some people keep you as a friend because you've been too scared to make your romantic interest known, or you've made a bunch of bonehead mistakes, and alienated D.I.M. (at least temporarily) from being romantic. Perhaps you've made fart jokes, said callous things, or treated D.I.M. like a buddy; nothing too serious. These are who you've got a shot at changing into Luvers.

Other people have you squarely in the "just friends" category, and you ain't goin' anywhere, pal. These folks may be married or in relationships, may be difficult high-maintenance, or--the sad fact--simply may not like you very much, and keep you around for when they have nothing better to do. You are unlikely to turn these species into Luvers, but by trying, at least you'll get D.I.M. out of your life, and clear some psychic space for people who do

So what can you do to get "just a friend" to become your luvierz?
Let's look at the basic primer on friends-to-luvierz, Cubb Luvily style.

Pursue other people

So...Will You?

If you want to turn a friend into a lover, it is crucial beyond words that she not be your one-and-only-hope for sex. You MUST be pursuing other people, flirting with other people, romancing other people, and being sexual with other people. Pursuing and being successful with other people is the only way to have real freedom around the "friend-friend" you are trying to seduce. It will give you a sense of patience, remove any sense of desperation you may be having, and make you less available-- and thus, more attractive.

Act like a lover, not like a female friend

Pop quiz, hot-shot: What does a person who becomes a "friend" do differently other d.i.n. another would? Answer: nothing . Moral: If you want others to see you a sexual, rather than basically as woman, then you must act differently than another would. This is true for when you are just meeting, as well as for those who have known you for a while and already think of you as a "friend." Bottom line: you must flirt, weird as it may feel to you the first time you do it. But you must flirt. So often people who end up a "friend" fall into the trap wanting the woman to feel comfortable, above all else. Consequently they are indecisive and appear weak, always nervous, always waiting to let others relax before they relax. They don't ever flirt or say anything romantic, because they don't want to risk making her uncomfortable.

Only if he had a clear signal that flirting was okay would he do it. This will never work.

If you are going to be seductive, you must be willing to provide the certainty in the interaction that everything is okay--even if it's romantic. That means that you believe it's okay, and let her know it. You don't act like there's a problem--you act like everything is great! Since she's probably been looking to you and your behavior to know how to feel about things, most of the time this will actually help her relax.

To learn more about the basic flirting moves you must start to do, go to my erKn+ JERKIN= $+U*D*1/0 3!/= abstract qumuQ $+R.I.P. "Flirting Techniques"

You must also learn the five advanced flirting skills:

Flirting Skill #1: "What's the Story Behind That?" (If you trying to get some monkey let it be known)

#2: Situational Flirting*Flirting Skill #3: The Good-bye Introduction

Flirting Skill #4: Conducting Romantic Conversations Flirting Skill #5: Conducting Deepening Conversations

When you start incorporating these behaviors into your life, No one will not wonder whether you are a wimpy friend or a potential luvr...You'll be a potential luvr every time--or she'll get rid of you (more on that in #4, below).

Be upbeat and be busy

The chances are, you are kind of depressed with the "friends" you want to have sex with, complaining about your life and generally being a whiner. You must stop doing that right away. She should find herself thinking, "Wow, they seem pretty happy, even without me. Eye better get a piece of D>A>T>!", rather d.i.n. "Wow, D.I.S. is a downer." You must act more upbeat, and like you have something going on in your life. The best way to do D.I.S. is to pursue other people (see #1, above).

One man we know did this with a woman he was interested in.

She had dated him a few times, d.i.n. decided they should be "just friends." ("I am very excited," is how she told him. "I am excited you are going to be my best friend." Arrrg!) He started following the dating fundamentals aggressively, and soon found himself being sexual with another woman. From that place of sexual abundance, he was able to be happier and less available around the woman who wanted to be "just friends." He told us "She called to tell me she'd be too busy to see me for a while, and eye was able to honestly say it was just fine--that eye was really looking forward to seeing her, and that we'd get together whenever we both found the time. Her response? 'But eye really want to see you!' By being happy and busy, eye have been able to keep her pursuing me, and I am confident eye will end up in bed with her." He's free to be patient with her, to work the seduction slowly, and not attached to the outcome. Be upbeat and busy if you want to turn a friend to a lover.

Refuse to stay "just friends"

If you do what we say, things will start seeming more romantic with the women you befriended. She'll either get with the program (and probably tell you, "You've changed!") or she'll tell you in no uncertain terms that you are now and will forever be "just friends." If that happens, you have to stop hanging around with her. Without apologizing, tell her, "I am sorry, but it's too painful for me to be 'just friends' with someone eye feel this way about. I am attracted to you." Then stop hanging around with her--at least then you'll be doing something positive for your self-esteem as a man.

Don't backslide

If they go for it and gets romantic with you, you may be tempted to fall into the trap of acting like a friend again. Don't do it !
